Senator John T. Caine.

Senator John T. Caine is one of the most conspicuous figures in the political history of Utah. He was born on the Isle of Man in 1829, but came to the United States when a boy. He President Aquila Nebeker.

Senator Aquila Nebeker, presiding officer of the upper chamber, was born in 1859 in this city.

After completing a common school education he went through Southern Utah and engaged in freighting and mining work. He became the assayer and accountant for Hunter and Goss in 1877 at their amalgamating mill. Besides many other mining enterprises Mr. Nebeker was one of the owners of the copper ore plant in Arizona. In 1884 he moved to Rich county, where his chief occupation has been ranching and cattle-raising. He has received many political preferments, having been county attorney and surveyor and a member for several sessions of the legislature. He is one of the best known men in the state and everywhere he is looked upon as honest, able and aggressive.

first located at New York City, where he accepted the Mormon faith, and in the fall of 1848, removed to St. Louis, where he was actively engaged in assisting the Mormon immigration to Utah. While in St. Louis, Mr. Caine married and became a citizen of the republic. This was in 1851, and a year later, accompanied by his wife and child, he made a trip across the plains by ox team and settled at Salt Lake City. In April, 1854, he went on a mission to the Sandwich Islands and returned home in 1858. While in California, he cast his first ballot for president of the United States, his vote being for James Buchanan, the Democratic candidate. In the same year his political career commenced, when he
